"Kalyn's World"

Kalyn K. Team Chavez

I used markers, blue oil pastel, pencil, and color pencils to create this artwork. My challenge was matching up the lines but when I thought it looked perfect, so I left it alone. I learned that it's always best when it comes from the heart. That this is something that we can all use our imagination.. When I was a younger I wanted to be famous and rich and so I made this.

I used oil pastels to create my name. I was inspired to put like some color into make art. I just made what came to my mind. My challenge was the materials I used were not coming on it very well but I still did it. I learned that you can think of something that you want to put in but its not all ways going to be easy.

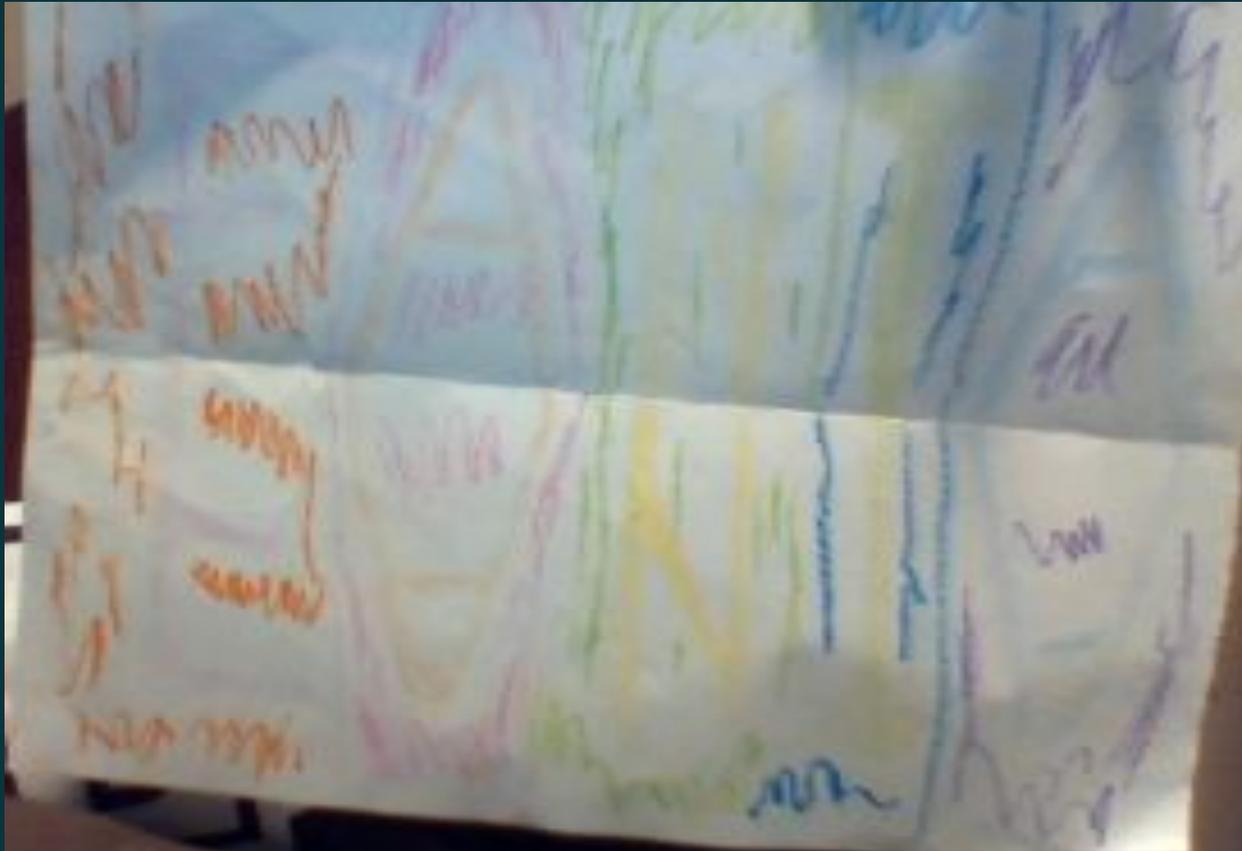

Gianna A.

The materials I used are oil pastels! And I also used a spoon to add extra color. What inspired me was the fact that it was an assignment and that its my name so i tried to do a good job.i didn't really have any troubles with creating this piece of art.to have patience while making creations.my name and my style!!!!

For my piece of artwork I used a pencil, oil pastels, and paper. My personality inspired me to create the artwork. My challenge was getting the letters to come out how I wanted them to. I learned to be myself and nobody can be like me. I want people to know about my work that you should never give up and keep trying.

The Colors of Your Name

I used a pencil, Art pastels, a sharpie used for outlining, and a piece of paper. My teacher inspired me to create this art piece. A challenge for me was that I could not find the right piece of paper to use. I overcame it by just using some paper from my sketch book. What I want people to know about my artwork is that my name is beautiful, and that you should always love your name. One of your loved ones probably named you.

Lame Lia

I used paper pencil and color markers. i just decided to draw what my hand said. The challenge was to get the shadow thing so i drew it again and then i erased it to look kind of bland. i learned that art does not have to be fancy.

Color Fly

I used paint, my finger, paper, and permanent marker. A challenge was trying to blank in the paint with my fingers because I lost my paintbrush. I overcame it by washing my hands and adding a drop of water to make the paint watery and easier to blend. I want them to know that everybody is unique in their own way.

My Shoe

I used a sharpie,, colored pencils, and a pencil. I was inspired to draw this by Mrs. Howard. I didn't think I could do it but I took my time. I learned to take my time. I want people to know that I tried.

Fanta C.

The Rainbows of Shoes

I used color pencils, a purple pen, pencils, and a piece of paper. One of my challenges was that I was trying to paint some of the parts of the shoe, but then I made a mistake. I realized art is not just about painting, drawing, etc. It is mostly about having fun and trying your best. I learned that art is full of mistakes. Mistakes are a part of art. I want people to know that my artwork represents my name. Since my name is Nicole I feel like my name is colorful, has heart to it, and just like my artwork I am not always >PERFECT!!!!

The Shoe Drawing

I used pencil and paper. What inspired me is that I wonder if I could draw. I choose to draw my shoe in real life and I did good. The challenge was that the laces were hard so I just put in the best effort. The laces were uneven so I listened to my art teacher and put extra details. I learned from creating this that I probably want to become a designer. I want to be a designer because I think I could be very good at shoes. This comes from the heart because I tried my best on this project.

The materials that I used were markers, sharpies and pencils. The artwork was inspired by one of my favorite animes, Toilet bound Hanako-kun. I learned the basics form of drawing a shoe. I want people to know that shoes can be very different.

Fly

I used a pencil. I like angel wings. A challenge that I had was making the wings because I had to do it inside the lines. I overcame it by thinking calmly. I learned that creativity can bring so much good and beauty that no one really knows. What I want people to know about my artwork is that I put in a lot of hard work into it and it came out beautifully.

Jordan 4

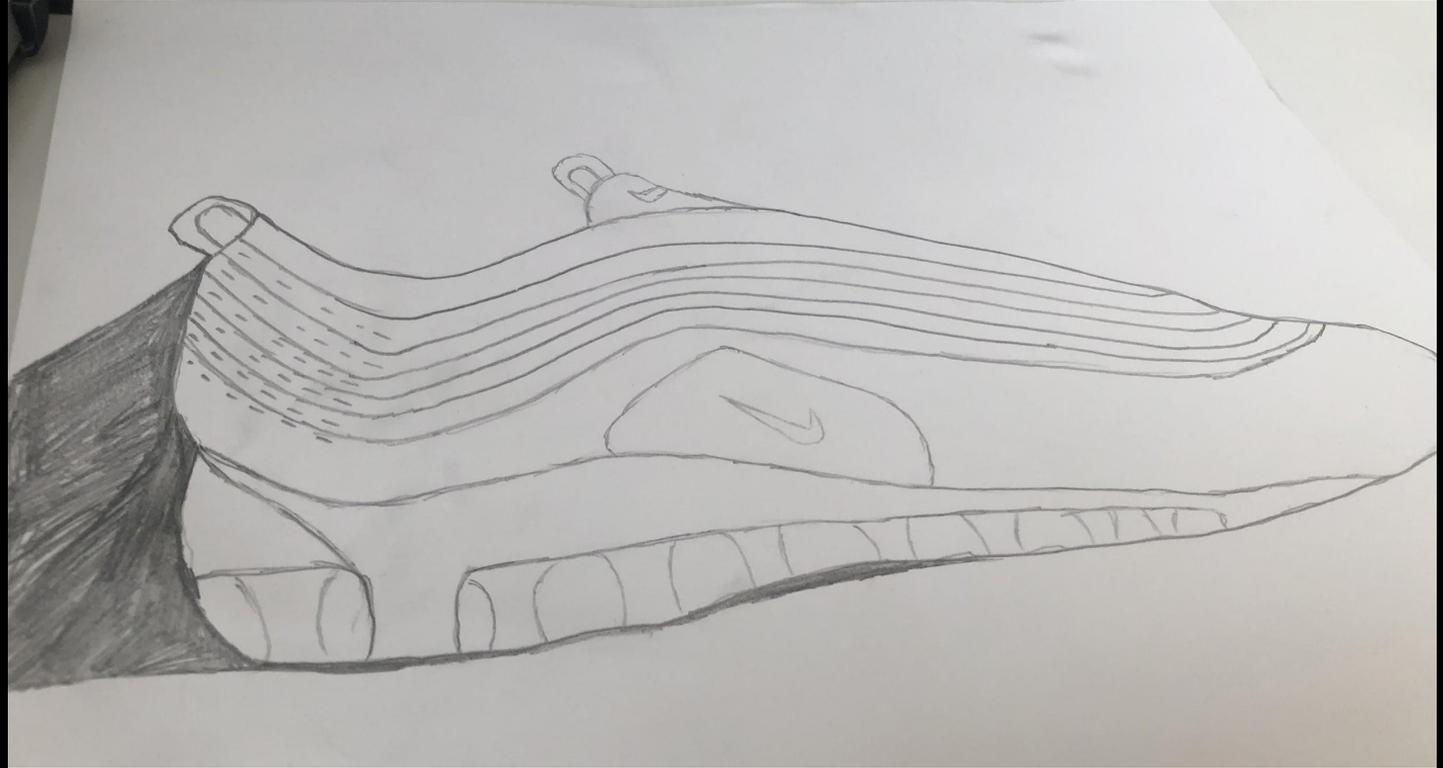

Jordan 4

I used pencil, and color pencil. I was inspired to create this because I'm a sneaker head and because these types of shoes are my favorite which are called Jordan 4. The challenge was definitely trying to find the right color theme. I realized I was a better drawer than I thought. I want people to know this artwork is unique.

My Favorite Sneakers

I used pencil, markers, and paper. I was inspired by my new sneakers. The challenge was that the video Ms.Howard showed us I didn't understand it. So I did my own research and I found an easier video that helped me a lot more. I learned to never stop trying. I want people to know I tried my best.

So this is my self it does not look special and that is the point. My self artist statement for this won't be anything special and that is also the point. My self portrait lives in a black and white world with nothing but nothing. The only colors it see's is the ones from the outside world. If this drawing had a name it would be nameless. Nothing special about it is what makes it so special.

Self-Portrait

I used a pencil, blending stump, eraser, and a kneaded eraser. I made this artwork, which is a self portrait, of me as a manga character. I learned that manga has less realistic proportions. I want people to know that you can make yourself in different styles and ways.

Self-Portrait

I used paper, glue, pencil, and sharpie. Mrs. Howard inspired me to create my portrait. My challenge was that I thought it was bad, then I started to like it. I learned that I'm good at art. I want people to know I tried.

Fanta C.

Self-Portrait

I used a pencil, paper, my sketch book, ribbed up newspapers, paint, and paint brushes. My teacher inspired me to make my piece of artwork. One of my challenges through this process was that I had trouble with my head and my hair. I also had trouble with the design, and the shoulder part. But I got some help with that. And I had trouble creating my mask, and nose. I learned that every shape of my face is beautiful, and I learned that art is not perfect. I want people to know that I worked really hard and it took me a week to do this. I also want people to know that art is not also going to look good, if you make a mistake that's ok because art is not always PERFECT!!!!

Makiah Self-Portrait

I used color pencils, a pencil, paper, and ripe magazines. What inspired me was that portrait that Ms.Howard showed us. The challenge was trying to really make it look like me. I learned that when you are really creative it will make an art piece. I want people to know that this art piece means Makiah art piece.

The Words in Me

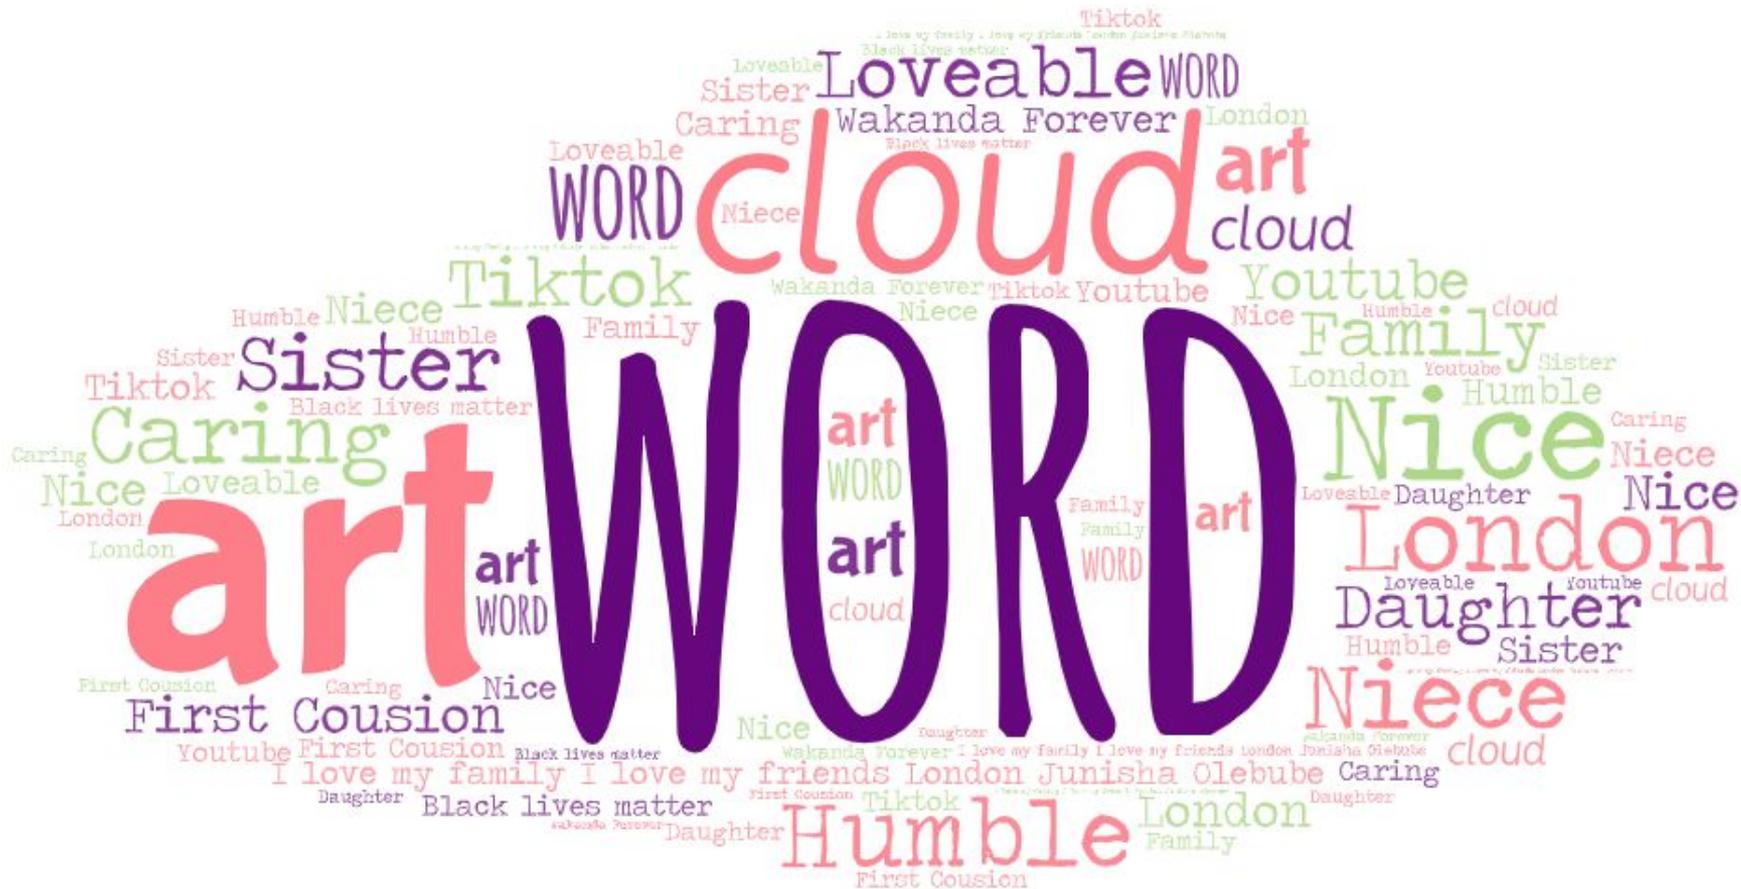

I used the art called wordart to do my final project. My teacher always inspires me to do my art work. She is the best art teacher you can ask for. One challenge was putting the word, and trying to make the light in the picture more better. I had to do my second picture because my first one did not turn out right. I learned that that's ok because art is full of mistakes. I want people to know that I tried really hard and I hope they think my work is beautiful.

Paper Kente Cloth

The materials i used were colored paper sharpie scissors glue and a ruler and a pencil. Something that inspired me to create this was that i wanted it to look like a real kente cloth. A challenge was getting the paper to stay straight and in the right shape.. I learned that anyone can do anything. That practice makes perfect.

Wood Flower

I used wood, glue, and color markers. What inspired me was that the wood looked like flower petals so I guessed that I could make a flower out of it. A challenge was trying to make it stand up like it's sitting in dirt but that was hard. I learned that you could do creative things using wood pieces. And make it into creative art work. I want people to know I wanted this artwork to be creative and fun at the same time but with it standing wasn't cooperating with me.

The Cat Man

I used cardboard, glue and markers. That my sister likes cats and I like to draw people when I draw so I made a cat man the superhero. A challenge was the glue. I learned that anything you make as art is art no matter if it is good or bad. I want people to know to be creative.

Boat of Freedom

I used cardboard, color markers, glue, and some paint brushes. My teacher inspired me to do my artwork. A challenge that I had was that when I wanted something to stand it would not. I learned that art is full of mistakes. I want people to know that my art is a boat. It is called the boat of freedom.

Saving the Depressed

I used cardboard, wooden shapes, paint, and paint brushes. I was inspired by saving people who are really sad. Also I wanted to put positive energy around. The challenge was painting because the paint wasn't staying on the wood but I kept trying and it stayed. I learned that positive people usually help the negative people. I want people to know that I was very sad at one point but my mom and my friend helped me overcome that sadness.

London W.

I used a box, bobby pins, and a rubber band to create my prototype. I was inspired by a video I saw. I had help creating this. I learned how to make a prototype. I want people to know that this is a very scientific piece of art.

Family Collage

The materials I used were acrylic paint, pictures, and markers. What inspired me is that I thought that would be fun for me and the family. What I learned is that it's always going to be hard doing it with family because we all have different styles in art. I want people to know that even if you are mad at your family they will always forgive you and they are like your best friend. If you lose you will like crap all the time and I know that for sure.

Kalyn K.

Foil water Park

I used foil, board, and glue. Ms. Howard inspired me to create this. The challenge was the tree wouldn't say but I got it to work. I learned to try hard.. I want them to know art is fun.

Fanta C.

Recycle

I used plastic bottles, soda cans, glue, and gorilla glue. What inspired me was the house I live in. A challenge was making it stick together using regular glue, but instead I used gorilla glue. I learned how to recycle things to make artwork. I want people to know that me and my dad made this artwork together.

The Couch

I used cardboard, marker, hot glue, clear glue, pipe cleaners, ribbons, glitter, chalk, black paint, and cloth. Well actually I really didn't know what to do for this assignment but at first I was going to do a small bedroom but then I was going to do a bed but eventually me and my mom and baby brother made a couch. I burnt myself with the hot glue gun but the burn calmed down and I am fine now. I learned that time and patience will make a masterpiece. I want people to know that me and my family did our best and had fun making this

Paper Art

I used construction paper, glue, and scissors. What inspired me was a doll that my grandmother has in her room because it's from Africa. The challenge was that the glue wasn't drying fast enough but I had patience. I learned from creating this artwork is if your first art work wasn't working out just use the same materials but create something different. I want people to know that I was trying to do something else but that didn't work out.

The Life of Spongebob Squarepants

I used paint, paint brushes, plastic forks, styrofoam cups, cardboard, and empty toilet paper rolls. My teacher inspired me to make this artwork. It was really hard but I did it. A challenge was to glue all the pieces together. I overcame it by trying to make it stand and working really hard. It was hard because every time I tried to put it together, it would just fall. I was about to give up. But then it started to stand so I took a picture really quick. And it is still standing right now. I learned that even though I do not like it some people might. It is ok if someone does not like it, that is a part of art. You are not going to like everything you do. Art is full of mistakes. Art is beautiful.

Basketball Stadium

I used cardboard markers, metal glue, and tape. What inspired me was that I love basketball so I thought that I should do it. A challenge for me was the tape. and then my dad ended up helping me with it. I learned that all art is beautiful the way it is. I want people to know that all art and especially theirs is special.

Among Us

I used markers, pencils, and color pencils. I love the game among us and I am always imposter so I choose to recreate a scene that happens. I kept drawing out of line but I calmed down and focused on it and now the lines are perfect. I learned that I have an amazing art teacher and that she made me more interested in art. I want people to know that Ms. Howard will teach you amazing things in her class.

Day to Night

I used paint. What inspired me was a playlist someone made and I was like I thought I could draw something like this so I painted it and it was so cool. I had no challenges during this project. I want people to know that there is always a different side to one person.

Ocean view

I used paint to create this glamorous artwork. But the thing that inspired me to create it was when I was looking at pictures on my moms phone when we were at the beach. I said to myself "hmm that could be a pretty good artwork for school". What was challenging was deciding what colors I should use because if you use every single color of the rainbow it would either be black or brown. I feel like. I learned that like even if you make a mistake it can turn into something very very beautiful. I hope you like it. What I want you to know about my artwork is that it is unique.
